

IAF-AECCA 2019 CARMONA MEETING

Welcome to the 51st International Falconry Meeting in Carmona 2019

Asociación Española de cetrería y conservación de Aves Rapaces (AECCA) is honored to host the International Falconry Association (IAF) this year 2019 in Carmona, Spain. We are looking forward to share with you our Spanish traditions, history and special hunting experiences to create lasting falconry memories.

The Annual IAF Council of Delegates Meeting will be held December 1-7 in Carmona, Spain. Carmona is located 33km north-east of Seville, which is also the nearest airport reachable in 20 minutes by car. Carmona is one of Spain's National Monument Cities and has been visited by many famous rulers of the past including Julius Caesar and Muza the Arabic invader. The town has many historic sights, from the roman and moorish heritage and palaces of Spanish Kings.

The meetings will take place at the Parador de Carmona from Dec. 1-4. The Parador is a 14th century arabic fortress, built on a site of previous fortresses of the early Iberian people and the Carthaginians. The courtyard has a colonnaded cloister and a Mudejar fountain.

The following two days from Dec. 5-6 will be hunting days for red-legged partridge, ducks, hares and rabbits with falconry birds in the surrounding areas of the beautiful Andalusian countryside. For the hunting days we ask each country's falconry association to choose 2 or 3 hunting representatives. Further hunting possibilities to more falconers can be given depending on availability, once the inscription process is complete.
